

March 1 2010

Welcome to my first ever real nappy blog, that will tell you all about my life experiences on real nappies with my baby girl!

So, Alice Rose - our first baby arrived on 10th Feb 2010 and after the first week of total chaos our thoughts went towards real nappies.

We bought 20 Bum Genius real nappies to keep our little girl going until potty training.....we hope!

In her wisdom my wife decided to get 20 sky blue coloured real nappies.....I support United, so great start there! But after a few teething problems - Alice was very small at 6lbs 2oz the sky blue real nappies are on and going well so far.

At first I did think that the real nappies were just too big at first but after some advice and fiddling the nappies are cracking and the first lot of washing in the 'special bag' have gone in! It's just amazes that I'm now obsessed with my little girls poo and I'm finding myself getting excited about nappies.....fatherhood eh!

6 April 2010

Well Alice is doing very well and growing fast! The Bum Genius nappies are fitting brilliantly and I've found that it holds in the poo so much better but it hasn't stopped Alice sticking her feet in the poo....babies eh!

Anyway, I'm finding the real nappies very easy to use and wash and they are much softer than I thought which is great for Alice! Also, I've found the travel bag very handy indeed when Alice explodes when I'm out! Worked a treat in the middle of Southport Pier I can tell you! But the main thing is that Alice doesn't mind the real nappy at all and going through the night hasn't been a problem as that was my only concern about using real nappies at first.

