

April - Real Nappy Week

Hello all,

Well a fair few things have happened since my last blog so here goes. You may have seen me and my Alice in the Wigan Observer promoting real nappies and I must say Alice looked wonderful.....sorry just beaming with pride! It's all for Real Nappy Week which starts on 26th April for the whole week, so hopefully I might see you at some of the events I'm at.

At home Alice is sleeping right through the night.....bliss!!!!!! But she does wake up a bit soggy some mornings but it doesn't matter what nappy you use the outcome is the same. Plus Alice doesn't seem to matter and it's what babies' just do I'm afraid.

But I have been so impressed with the Bum Genius real nappies that I've ordered some more in tangerine! I wanted pink for my little girl but my wife wanted a unisex colour for our next baby (I think she wants a boy if we have another).....took me a little time to reply but my wife is always right and tangerine it is!

So look forward to meeting some of you around town next week and all the best,

Cheers Nick