Given the higher volumes of traffic now at Haigh Hall, the traffic arrangement at the entry to the car park needs looking at, as there is no possibility to queue without blocking School Lane. 294 Wigan Council Ward Boundary Consultation

- for discussion and agreement

June witnessed the start of a 10-week public consultation inviting proposals for new council wards and ward boundaries for Wigan Borough Council.

The Local Government Boundary Commission's consultation will close on 23 August 2021.

After they have considered all representations made to them during this consultation, they intend to publish draft recommendations in November 2021.

They will then hold a further period of consultation on their draft recommendations. Their final recommendations are expected to be published in May 2022.

The new electoral arrangements will come into effect at the local elections in May 2023.

What is an electoral review?

The electoral review will recommend new electoral arrangements for Wigan Borough Council. The Commission will propose:

- the total number of councillors elected to the Council in the future;
- the number of wards;
- the number of councillors representing each ward;
- ward boundaries; and
- the names of wards.

How to get involved

This is a public consultation and the Commission welcome views from individuals and organisations across Wigan on where they think new ward boundaries should be drawn.

The Commission are minded to recommend that 75 councillors should be elected to Wigan Borough Council in the future.

This is no change from the current number of councillors. The Commission are now inviting proposals to help them draw up a pattern of wards to accommodate 75 councillors. In drawing up new electoral wards, they must balance three legal criteria, namely:

- to deliver electoral equality: where each councillor represents roughly the same number of electors as others across the borough;
- that the pattern of wards should, as far as possible, reflect the interests and identities of local communities;
- that the electoral arrangements should provide for effective and convenient local government.

They will treat all submissions equally, and judge each case on its merits and against the legal criteria.

If the Council wish to put forward a view, the Commission would urge the Council to ensure that evidence supports its submission.

For example, if the Council wish to argue that two areas should be included in the same electoral ward, the Council should tell the Commission why they should be together, providing evidence about community facilities, ties, organisations, and amenities, rather than simply asserting that they belong together. There is more advice on the Commission's website about how members can get involved in the consultation.

Their website features technical guidance that explains the process and their policies, as well as guidance on how to take part in each part of the process.

The Commission have also set up a webpage dedicated to the review of Wigan, where members can find all the relevant information.

Members can also access interactive maps of the current ward boundaries across Wigan on the Commission's specialist consultation portal. The portal also allows consultees to comment and upload documents directly to the site.
